T.K. Thorne

“The Flood That Changed The World & What They Don’t Want Us To Know About Our Religion”

Award-winning author, T.K. Thorne wrote novels about remarkable women who were only given a brief mention in two of the world’s oldest and most famous stories—the biblical tales about Noah’s flood and the fiery destruction of Sodom & Gomorrah. Years of research went into creating the background and ancient settings of the novels, but many of the questions Thorne explores resonate in today’s world.

- Was Noah’s flood a real event?
- The oldest known worshiped deity was female. The role of the feminine in the divine was entwined with early Judaism and keeps reappearing throughout history. Why was She demonized?
- Could angels be related to Stonehenge?
- What really happened to the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah?

Bio:

T.K. Thorne’s childhood passion for storytelling deepened when she became a police officer in Birmingham, Alabama. “It was a crash course in life and what motivated and mattered to people.” When she retired as a captain, she took on Birmingham’s business improvement district as the executive director before retiring again to write full time.

Both careers and a Masters Degree in Social Work from the University of Alabama provide fodder for her writing, which has garnered several awards, including “Book of the Year for Historical Fiction” (ForeWord Reviews) for her debut novel Noah’s Wife. The New York Post’s “Books You Should Be Reading” list featured her first non-fiction book, Last Chance for Justice, which details the investigation of the 1963 Sixteenth Street church bombing case. Rave reviews have followed her newest novel about the unnamed wife of Lot, Angels at the Gate, which won the Independent Book Publisher’s Association’s Benjamin Franklin Award for historical fiction.

She loves traveling, especially to research her novels, and speaking about her books and life lessons. She writes at her mountaintop home near Birmingham, often with two dogs and a cat vying for her lap.

“...a terrific storyteller.”
